5. Apps Can Enable Teachers to Decrease Their Paperwork

It's a relief to get all the mundane tasks done with a few taps along with cutting down the time spent on data collection. As you engage more students through classroom apps and by using EdTech in teaching and learning, the more data you will collect. Thus you will be able to achieve a better work-life balance. Primarily this data can be used to gauge the learning difficulties faced by the student and modify the instructions to then customize the learning for a better outcome.

The slide also features an illustration of a book titled "English Lesson" and a pencil.

The bottom part of the image shows a grid of seven participants in the Zoom meeting. The meeting title is "Spotkanie Polska- Turcja dla nauczycieli / Meeting with Turkish teachers". The participants are:

- Maria Kobyńska
- Joanna Majka
- HALIL TOPÇUOĞLU (Gość)
- Gurkan (Gość)
- Ewa Głowacka Perłowska
- Michał Ratajczak
- Iwona Potaczala

The Zoom interface includes a top toolbar with icons for "Steruj", "Nowe okno", "Czat", "Osoby", "Podnieś rękę", "Zareaguj", "Widok", "Aplikacje", "Więcej", "Kamera", "Mikrofon", "Udostępnij", and "Opuść". The bottom status bar shows the system tray with weather information (3°C Deszcz i śnieg) and the time (15:33 2023-09-28).

2. Mobile Apps Help in Systematic Learning

Classroom apps can be arranged in such a way that, it promotes not only a craving for learning as the child can track how far they've come and attempt to advance through the levels. In 2013 a study by PBS LearningMedia found that 74% of teachers were in agreement that technology enables them to solidify learning in their lessons. The Huffington Post also found that "78% of Kindergarten through Middle School teachers agree that technology has had a positive impact on their classroom."

At the bottom of the slide, there is a circular graphic of the Union Jack flag and a black feather. The name "Maria Kobylska" is visible in the bottom left corner of the slide.

On the right side of the Zoom window, there is a gallery view of six participants. The top row shows two participants, and the bottom row shows four participants. The bottom-most participant is a woman with short grey hair wearing a light-colored jacket.
